

Improve Your English & Get Ready to Publish!

Take ESL 5315 - Academic Writing Summer I, 2017

This course prepares non-native speakers of English for graduate-level academic writing. The focus of the course is on writing papers for academic journals and professional conferences. Students will be introduced to a variety of topics related to writing research papers, including developing research questions, constructing literature reviews, creating research methodologies, and identifying and using various strategies for writing successful academic texts. The course is especially designed for non-native speakers of English but can be useful for anyone who wants to develop their academic writing skills and become a competitive scholar in their field.

Meets MTWRF 2:00-3:50 pm during Summer I, 2017
Instructor: Dr. Olga Pahom (olga.pahom@ttu.edu)

This course counts towards the Graduate Certificate in English Language for Academic and Professional Communication.